The County consists of approximately 260 square miles and has a population of 28,046 (per the 2010 U.S. Census). While maintaining a charming rural atmosphere, Powhatan County's central location provides residents with access to major cultural, recreational, educational, and medical centers. Powhatan is 20 miles west of Richmond, the Commonwealth's capitol city, and is within an easy 2-hour drive from the Atlantic Ocean, Washington, D.C., Colonial Williamsburg, and the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Powhatan offers businesses all the benefits and conveniences of, but a welcomed respite from, metropolitan areas. As one of the fastest growing counties in the state, Powhatan strives to maintain rural charm, while smartly planning for a balance of business and residential growth. Among the greatest attractions for both businesses and residents alike, are easy access to an excellent transportation network, outstanding schools, no gross receipts tax and an extraordinary quality of life.

The County is governed by a five-member Board of Supervisors. The supervisors are elected by district and serve four-year concurrent terms. The current Board is serving the 2020-2023 term and took seat January 1, 2020. A special appointment for a vacant District 2 seat was appointed in April 2021 and a special election will be held on November 2, 2021 to fill the seat for the remainder of the term.

Powhatan County's annual budget is $100.1M. This includes $50.4M appropriated to Powhatan Public Schools. The budget is balanced without the use of one-time revenue sources. The County has a strong, resilient economy and has seen steady revenue growth in the past five budget cycles. With only 189 Full-Time Equivalents (FTEs), the County operates very efficiently.

The top industries in Powhatan are construction; professional, scientific, and technical services; finance and insurance; health care and social assistance; and administrative and support. Historically, residential assessments have represented 92% of the County's total assessment base.
